

CENTER FOR COMMUNITY AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

About CCED

For over 50 years, the MSU Center for Community and Economic Development (CCED) has designed, implemented, and evaluated innovative community-based solutions to local problems through responsive engagement, strategic partnerships, and collaborative learning. This innovative approach served as the national model for university-community partnerships established by the Community Outreach Partnership Act. Over 150 university-community partnerships were supported through this federal program.

The Center for Community and Economic Development is an academic unit housed in the MSU Office of University Outreach and Engagement.

Building Prosperity Through Innovative Development

The CCED, in partnership with on- and off-campus partners, seeks to:

- create and nurture collaborative environments to support innovative learning in community and economic development;
- provide training and direct assistance to increase the knowledge-based skills of community-based organizations, private enterprises, and public institutions;
- conduct and facilitate cutting-edge research to assist the development and implementation of effective problem-solving strategies;
- deploy multidisciplinary university capacity to respond to the complex and interrelated problems of distressed communities; and
- promote and expand the university's capacity to provide training, direct assistance, and research that effectively addresses critical community challenges.

With its Lansing office on Michigan Avenue, CCED has renewed and deepened its commitment to innovative community development. Located approximately midway between the State Capitol and the MSU East Lansing campus, the East Michigan Avenue location symbolizes a bold university-community nexus borne of award-winning performance in the past and strategic imperatives designed for the sustainable prosperity of Michigan communities in the future.

Mission

The Center for Community and Economic Development is committed to creating, applying, and disseminating valued knowledge through responsive engagement, strategic partnerships, and collaborative learning. We are dedicated to working with communities to co-create sustainable prosperity and equitable economies.

Principles of Community Development

The Center for Community and Economic Development embraces the following Principles of Good Practice adopted from the Community Development Society¹:

- Co-Learning
- Collaboration
- Community-Driven Practice
- Community Power
- Dignity within Diversity
- Economic Autonomy
- Social Justice
- Sustainability

Community Development Problem-Solving

Current CCED Initiatives

Regional Economic Innovation (REI)

MSU Regional and Economic Innovation (REI) was created in 2011 by the MSU Center for Community and Economic Development (CCED).

Since its establishment, REI has built a network of community and economic development stakeholders, including economic development practitioners, higher education institutions, private- and public-sector leaders, workforce development boards, community action agencies, public utilities, commercial lenders, and EDA Economic Development Districts. This network assists in producing economic development strategies to create high growth entrepreneurship and jobs in distressed regions of Michigan.

The center actively draws upon resources and expertise from within MSU and other Michigan colleges and universities. It also leverages the experience and assets from economic development organizations. REI's Co-Learning and Innovation Fellow projects draw upon the aggregate knowledge and experience of practitioners, scholars, and leaders to create actionable knowledge and design innovative development strategies.

REI leverages four pillars of focus in co-creating with partners:

- Resiliency Planning
- Financial Resiliency
- 21st-Century Communications Infrastructure
- Circular Economies

These strategies come to fruition in three project types: Co-Learning Plans; Student-Led, Faculty-Guided Technical Assistance; and Innovation Fellows.

Each year, REI hosts the Innovate Michigan! Summit highlighting tools, models, policies, and programs that can create a more equitable economic environment in Michigan.

For more information:
reicenter.org

CCED Lansing Initiatives

Lansing Community Engagement Specialist

CCED's community engagement specialist, Dr. Kevin Brooks, is at the forefront of MSU's proactive strategy in the Greater Lansing region, focusing on neighborhood, community, and economic development. Brooks joined CCED in the spring of 2025 and is engaging non-profit organizations, community and neighborhood organizations, government agencies, preK-12 school districts, and private for-profit organizations to facilitate community-university partnerships.

Urban Community Engagement Fellows Program

The Urban Community Engagement Fellows (UCEF) Program is a joint initiative of MSU's Graduate School and the Office of University Outreach and Engagement. UCEF pairs a multidisciplinary team of MSU graduate students with Lansing-area community partners to envision and sustain collaborative community-identified projects. Currently, UCEF works with communities in Southwest Lansing.

Thinkers and Doers

The bi-annual CCED Thinkers and Doers event is a time for practitioners and engaged citizens in the Eastside Lansing community to come together with MSU faculty and economic development practitioners to discuss issues of concern. These informal forums provide an opportunity for scholars and practitioners to share their perspectives on contemporary challenges and opportunities of interest to residents and businesses.

For more information:
ced.msu.edu/cced-lansing

CCED Flint Initiatives

Having established its office presence in Flint in 2014, CCED Flint is dedicated to working with Michigan communities to improve the quality of life through research and innovative strategies. We achieve this mission in the following ways.

MSU and Community Partnerships

CCED helps bring science and community wisdom to bear on critical, community-defined issues.

Currently these initiatives include:

- the creation of an equitable and sustainable regional food system;
- responding to the Flint water crisis and historical trauma; and
- supporting the College of Human Medicine's Flint Registry long-term health initiative for Flint children coping with lead poisoning.

Neighborhoods Without Borders

Neighborhoods Without Borders (NWB) is a community-based network that uses an asset-based approach to work on critical issues that improve the overall quality of life in Flint neighborhoods. Facilitated by a core team that includes CCED Flint staff members and grassroots organizations, NWB brings people from all sectors together using Strategic Doing, a process which enables people to form agile collaborations, take quick action toward measurable outcomes, and make adjustments along the way.

For more information:
ced.msu.edu/programs/cced-flint

Projects in Brief

Advancing Michigan's Circular Economies

CCED and a network of scholars and partners across Michigan are working to reduce our reliance on a "take, make, and throw away" model of production. We are exploring strategies to create new industries, products, and services that minimize waste, conserve energy, reduce greenhouse gas emissions, and utilize outputs from one process as inputs in another.

For more information:
ced.msu.edu/circular

Domicology

Domicology is a new concept describing the built environment and the life cycle of structures. The field of domiciology seeks to eliminate the current landfill-dependent structural demolition waste stream and to reimagine the built environment, recognizing that structures have a useful life cycle. At the end of a structure's life, we maximize the equitable use, reuse, or recycling of the materials.

For more information:
domicology.msu.edu

ced.msu.edu

Center for Community and Economic Development
University Outreach and Engagement
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

1615 E. Michigan Ave.
Lansing, MI 48912-2822
Phone: (517) 353-9555

081325

Rex L. LaMore
Director, Center for Community and Economic Development
lamore@msu.edu